HOW DO PEDOMETER BRANDS RATE?

A recent study found NEW-LIFESTYLES pedometers -- the LIFECORDER, the NL-2000, and the DIGI-WALKER to be the most accurate and reliable of 10 brands. They were exceptionally accurate, having 95% prediction intervals that were within +/- 17 steps (of an average of 513) from zero. They were the only pedometers accurate to within +/- 3% of the actual steps taken. Their intramodel reliability was also exceptionally high (>0.99). Five models dropped to the moderately accurate category, having 95% prediction intervals that were within +/- 100 steps from zero and two models were in the least accurate category and had 95% prediction intervals that were within +/- 188 steps from zero
